

FRIENDS OF THE WARREN LIBRARY

Who We Are

In 1979, several concerned individuals with the common desire to make the Warren Public Library (known today as the Warren-Trumbull County Public Library) one of the best in Ohio met to form the Friends of the Warren Library (FOWL).

Today, Friends members have one thing in common - a conviction that a community's library is one of its most important assets, serving as a basic repository of knowledge and information, as well as an important channel of entertainment and culture.

What We Do

The Friends generate their operating funds from membership dues, contributions, and an on-going book sale located in the Warren Library.

The Friends use their funds to support and enhance the mission of the W-TCPL, supplementing existing library resources. The library's mission is: to enhance lives by connecting people and ideas.
